A black and white line drawing of a man on a cross. The man has a beard and is wearing a loincloth. His eyes are closed, and his expression is one of suffering. He is surrounded by several question marks, suggesting a state of confusion or questioning. In the top left corner, there is text in three different scripts: Greek (Ρ ΔΡΥ' ?), Hebrew (רַחֲמֵי), and a mix of Greek and Latin (ΔΡΥΛΥΣ' ρϞ'). In the bottom right corner, there is a small black square containing a white heart symbol.

A black and white line drawing of a tree trunk. The drawing uses numerous curved, wavy lines to represent the texture of the bark and the growth rings of the wood. The lines are more densely packed in some areas, creating a sense of depth and texture. The top edge of the trunk is jagged and broken, suggesting a cut or a natural break. The overall style is simple and illustrative.
